

BPL should not go forward as it stands as it will cause more issues of enforcement for the FCC and it will not matter in the long run as current and upcoming wireless standards of data transmission make BPL obsolete, except in rural areas where it could be of use. It has no purpose in highly populated areas due to the fact of near-field interference with other radio users and frequencies.